Profile

M.Sc. Design with a background in the intersection between medical science and information technology. With this interdisciplinary perspective I act as a bridge between clients, design teams and development teams. This is evident from my consultancy experience, where I was involved in projects from initial analysis to design specification to planning development and implementing in code.

I invest my spare time in writing software, supplementing my education with courses, and traveling in the U.S. to network with others in tech.
